

Cyber Risk - managing the unmanageable

Kate Carruthers<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>University of New South Wales

Cyber risk management is something that most organisations are starting to take seriously.

This talk will address questions such as:

- How to develop a cyber risk program in line with the strategic objectives and risk appetite of the organisation.
- How organisations can establish effective controls around sensitive assets and balance this with the risk appetite by use of data governance?
- How can the security team use its threat, IT, and business data to more effectively communicate the cyber risk of incidents?
- How can organisations ensure that their incident management processes and technologies are up to the rapid response cycles that are necessary to effectively manage cyber risk?